You Will Learn About: developing a plan of action to deal with potential bioterrorist attacks in your community. You will be provided with information about the nature of a biological attack, the potential for destruction and how to deal with such attacks. This course provides a balanced view of the risks and threats of biological attacks and highlights current strategies to counter the problems.

At the conclusion of this course You Will Be Able To:

- Understand how the course materials can be applied to meet Weapons of Mass Destruction performance requirements of emergency responders and explain the participant performance evaluation process;
- List the types of possible biological events, outline the history of bio-weapons, discuss natural biological threats and contrast the common reality vs. misconceptions about bioterrorism;
- List the three components of successful bioterrorism, classify and identify those groups or individuals likely to use biological agents;
- Differentiate between bacteria, viruses and toxins, infection and contagion;
- State the biological, physical and aerobiological properties of biological agents threat determine the success of a bioterrorist attack;
- Describe the potential effects of an aerosol release or anthrax spores; and
- Define the Incident Command System (ICS) and describe its components and factors.
